Open SEC Meet Is Planned

The next meeting of the Students' Executive Council will be open to all students wishing to attend as non-participants, Colin McCallum, president of the Students' Society, said in a precedent-shattering announcement last night.

It is believed that this is the first time in many years that an open S.E.C. meeting has been planned.

In making the announcement, McCallum said he hopes the meeting, slated for Wednesday, Oct. 19 in the Reading Room of the Union, will promote interest in student administration. "I don't think students know enough about the problems involved in student government," he said.

During the Students' Society elections last March, several candidates suggested in their platforms the idea of holding open Council sessions. It was at a recent meeting, McCallum said, that S.E.C. members unanimously agreed to throw open the doors for their Oct. 19 session.

In deciding on this action, however, the Council laid down two stipulations. Firstly, students attending the meeting will not be allowed to participate in proceedings in any way. Secondly, if 2/3 of the Councilors vote to adjourn to the Board Room they may do so.

The agenda for the meeting will be published beforehand, McCallum also announced. It is hoped that at least four more open meetings, two before Christmas and two after, will be held, he added.

Rev. G. Caird To Take Over Divinity Post

Rev. George Bradford Caird, M.A., D. Phil., young Biblical scholar, has been appointed professor of New Testament language and literature in the newly established faculty of divinity at McGill, Dr. F. Cyril James, principal and vice-chancellor of the university, announced today on behalf of the Board of Governors.

Professor Caird is at present a professor in St. Stephen's College, Edmonton. Only 32 years of age, he was born in England and educated at Cambridge and Oxford.

He served as a minister at Highgate Congregational Church, London, before going to St. Stephen's College in 1946.

The new appointee, who will take over his assignment in June, succeeding Rev. W. A. Ferguson, completes the faculty as planned under the agreement with the co-operating theological colleges.

The faculty includes: Rev. Dr. J. S. Thomson, dean and professor of philosophy and psychology of religion; Rev. Dr. R. B. Y. Scott, professor of Old Testament language and literature; Rev. Dr. Wilfred C. Smith, professor of comparative religion; Rev. Dr. Robert Henry L. Slater professor of systematic theology, and Rev. Dr. H. H. Walsh, associate professor of church history.

Arts and Science Debaters Have Active Year Planned

The Arts and Science debating year was officially begun yesterday afternoon with a meeting held by the debating committee under the chairmanship of Mel Rothman. Plans for forthcoming activity were made, which include intra-class, inter-class, and interfaculty debates.

The chairman emphasized the fact that the main idea behind these class debates was to afford the opportunity to those who have done little or no debating previously to do so, and to give practice and polish to those with previous experience. Moreover, since the chairman will be chosen from among the debaters themselves, each participant will have the dual opportunity of learning to debate and at the same time of learning to be a chairman.

The judges obtained will be competent debaters who will be instructed to not only render a

Artsman Witness At Noronic Fire

Louis Eddy, Daily desk editor and Arts student at McGill, was called upon yesterday to give evidence at Toronto in connection with the Noronic disaster.

Eddy, who was employed as bell-boy on the vessel during the summer vacation said that his efforts to rouse the passengers were to shout 'fire' in the social hall and he "may have yelled that afterward." He said he saw a few persons about on the three top decks that he got the impression that all passengers were off the ship.

The witness told of rousing members of the crew and of their flight by ropes down from A deck to C deck, then to the freight deck by the crew's stairways.

Eddy said he had been told of his fire and boat drill stations by the steward staff, but he could not recall any instructions of training on how to fight various types of fire. He felt — "it might have been subconsciously" — that the first thing to do was turn in an alarm. Then he said he raced to a fire-box station to sound the alarm after discovering the fire but found the glass already broken.

Dawson Releases Floyer; Arrives in City Unharmed

By PHIL SPECTOR

If the high spirits shown by the Dawsonites last Tuesday night was any measure of the popularity of the Freshman Reception Program, then there is every reason for us to feel pleased, David Floyer said here yesterday.

Floyer, who is chairman of the Freshman Reception Committee, returned here today after having been kidnapped Tuesday night just as the freshman trials commenced in the Union ballroom. He was taken to Dawson.

"Suggestions that the abduction had any political implications are completely unfounded," Floyer declared.

"The manner in which I was tried was most undemocratic. But," he continued, "the execution of the sentence and subsequent happenings were the very essence of democracy."

Just before the Court convened Floyer was given a message that his presence was desired in the judge's antechamber. It emerged that those requiring his presence were some of the larger members of the Dawson football team.

In spite of his struggling, or perhaps because of them, he was bounced down the stairs of the Union to Sherbrooke St. where a large body of abductors were waiting. He was forced aboard a large vehicle, identified by witnesses as a Boula bus, which took him to Dominion Square.

There, before a large interested crowd of spectators, Floyer, and his adjutant, Boris Gardavsky, were sentenced by a drumhead courtmartial. Both men were sentenced to be exiled to Dawson.

A large fleet of vehicles then made their way through a collection of Radio Police cars that had appeared on the scene and to the tune of "Yeah Dawson" the fleet went on its way to McGill's country branch. The prisoners were entertained by a spirited discussion of the fate that lay in store for them.

Word of their arrival quickly spread and in a short time all of Dawson, dressed as only Dawsonites can dress, was present in the gymnasium. The prisoners were retried and their sentences confirmed. Floyer was then confined in the bar of a well known local hotel, and entertained there by certain prominent members of the faculty.

Various reports circulated around the McGill campus yesterday as to what happened to Floyer and his adjutant. Such rumors as car rides and a trip to Plattsburg proved to be unfounded.

It was reported that there were no unusual after effects from the entire episode—other than the usual hangover.

Hillel vs. Willie Loman Subject of Lecture Today

Today at 1:10 p.m. McGill Hillel will present a talk by Rabbi Arthur J. Lelyveld on Hillel vs. Willie Loman. This event will take place at the house, and all Hillelites are invited.

Rabbi Lelyveld is the National Director of B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundations, and a renowned educator and lecturer. He is a native of New York. He came to Hillel as Associate National Director in 1946, and succeeded Dr. Abraham Leon Sacher in the National Directorship Jan. 1, 1948.

He is the author of several articles in the Universal Jewish Encyclopedia. He was formerly rabbi of Temple Israel in Omaha, Nebraska, and while in Omaha headed the Industrial Relations Committee of the Omaha Urban League. He was chairman of the Omaha Fair Employment Council, and also served as public panel chairman for the War Labor Board.

Rabbi Lelyveld attended Columbia University, where he received his Bachelor of Arts degree and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa in 1933. He continued his studies at the Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati, Ohio, where he was ordained as rabbi and received the degree of Master of Hebrew Literature in 1939.

SEC Refutes Budget Slash Rues Time-table Conflict

"Slashing of budgets is utter nonsense," stated Colin McCallum last night at a meeting of the Presidents of the Undergraduates Societies in the New Room of the McGill Union. He refuted the Daily story that the S.E.C. was forced to cut down on all the budgets. "As a matter of fact," McCallum went on to say, "some budgets have been increased."

In explanation of the decrease of the cushioning fund to $10,000 he discussed three ventures that the S.E.C. deemed necessary. They were the $5,000 new furnace, $8,000 pension plan for employees of the Students Council and the nearly $8,000 soda fountain. All these were considered extremely worthwhile by the S.E.C.

McCallum then explained that the S.E.C. must get its policy straight pertaining to the many small clubs on the campus who did not collect fees but were turning to the S.E.C. for financial aid. He asked them to consider seriously whether these small clubs should be backed by the S.E.C. or not. It was suggested that these clubs be completely independent of the S.E.C. and collect their own fees. A discussion followed and this suggestion was favoured.

McCallum deplored the fact that in other years there were many conflicting social functions and dances and thought that steps should be taken to remedy this situation. He mentioned as an example, that the Hellenic Club is holding a dance on the same night as the Arts and Science Fall Informal. He pointed out that all social events should go before the Dates Committee. He said that the S.E.C. should not have to pay for parties put on by societies on the campus.

McCallum mentioned that at an S.E.C. meeting on Oct. 29 a motion is going to be brought forward in favour of raising the Student Society fees from twelve dollars to fifteen dollars. If it is not carried the S.E.C. will have to cut down on some things. He stated that McGill was one of the few Canadian universities collecting only twelve dollar student society fees and that most universities collect fifteen.

The two small faculties Music and Divinity complained that they did not get enough support from the other faculties at their social events, and asked for suggestions. McCallum arranged for a meeting between them and the Financial committee.

The next meeting is scheduled for November 2nd.

DVA Grants Taxable For Income Purposes

Federal allowances paid to veterans attending university are income for taxation purposes, according to a ruling announced yesterday by the Income Tax Appeal Board.

In a judgment made public the board ruled that the allowances, while tax free, can prevent the wife of a veteran from getting the tax exemptions of a married person supporting a husband or wife.

The board rejected the appeal of Mrs. Cella Bergart of Toronto against her assignment for 1947 when her husband, and R.C.A.F. veteran, was attending Osgoode Hall Law School.

Mrs. Bergart worked as a stenographer while her husband took classes and worked part-time as a clerk in a law office. During the year he earned $312 in the law office and got $720 from the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Mrs. Bergart claimed the $720 could not be considered income and she was a married person who supported her husband and was entitled to an exemption of $1,500. In similar decisions, two members of the board, Fabio Monet and W. S. Fisher, ruled the allowances as income. In a minority decision, Board Chairman R. T. Graham said he believed the allowances were a capital grant, not income, and that Mrs. Bergart's appeal should be allowed in part.

Pathologist Is Noted Expert, U. of T. Grad

Dr. George Lyman Duff, 45-year-old director of McGill University's Pathological Institute and Strathcona professor of pathology, has been appointed dean of the faculty of medicine in succession to Dr. Frederick Smith, who died suddenly early last month.

Announcement of the appointment was made yesterday by Dr. F. Cyril James, principal and vice-chancellor of the university, on behalf of the board of governors. A native of Hamilton, Ont., Dr. Duff was appointed to his present position with the university in 1939. He will continue his present duties when he assumes the medical deanship on Saturday.

Dr. Duff is a cousin and namesake of Rt. Hon. Sir Lyman Duff, retired chief justice of the Supreme Court of Canada.

An outstanding pathologist, he is engaged at McGill University in experimental studies of arteriosclerosis or hardening of the arteries. A second field of investigation now engaging his interest are pathological and experimental studies on diseases of the pancreas. This study includes investigations of tumors of the pancreas and experimental work in diabetes. He has written some 40 publications on these two fields of work. Since his appointment to the university's pathological Institute as head of its department of pathology, experimental research in disease has been built up to major proportions and the department has tripled in staff. He succeeded Prof. Horst Oertel in his appointment to the institute 10 years ago.

U. of T. Graduate Dr. Duff received his early education in public and high schools of Hamilton and later entered the University of Toronto. There he received a bachelor of arts degree in 1926, later a master of arts degree in biology, an M.D. in 1929 when he won the David Dunlop Memorial Prize in Pathology and Psychiatry and a Ph.D. in 1932 when his thesis on arteriosclerosis won him the Starr Gold Medal.

He joined the staff of the University of Toronto in 1929 as a demonstrator in pathology and the following year was George Brown Memorial Fellow in the university's department of pathology. In 1932 he joined the staff of Johns Hopkins University at Baltimore as fellow in medicine of the National Research Council and studied there for the next four years under Prof. W. G. MacCallum and Prof. A. R. Rich. During his period at Baltimore, he was first assistant and later instructor in pathology at the university and assistant pathologist at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

In 1935 he returned to the University of Toronto as lecturer in pathology and assistant pathologist at Toronto General Hospital. He became assistant professor of pathology at the university in 1937 and remained in that position until his appointment to McGill University. He was a member of McGill University senate from 1944 to 1947 as one of the elected representatives of the faculty of medicine.

He is a fellow of the Royal Society of Canada, an associate member of the National Cancer Institute of Canada, vice-president of the International Association of Medical Museums and a member of the Pathological Society of Great Britain and Ireland, American Association of Pathologists and Bacteriologists, Montreal Medical-Chirurgical Society and Quebec and Ontario associations of pathologists. He is also consultant pathologist at Alexandra Hospital, Jewish Hospital of Hope, Montreal General Hospital, Children's Memorial Hospital, Reddy Memorial Hospital,

Spanish Dept. Sets Extra Night Classes

Professor L. B. Harrop, head of the Spanish division in the department of romantic languages, announced yesterday that more than 300 students at McGill are studying Spanish and that provision has been made for an additional 150 adults in the evening.

Prof. Harrop said that for the first time this session a certificate of proficiency in Spanish would be available for evening students, the first class of which got underway Tuesday evening. Another class opens Thursday evening. There are four evening classes offered through the extension department, including an elementary, an intermediate and two advanced groups. Prof. Harrop also conducts evening classes in English for non-English speaking students.

The certificate courses are designed to give students a thorough grounding in both oral and written Spanish and certificates are granted on successful completion of the four evening courses.

Prof. Harrop spent considerable time during the summer at the International University at Santander, Spain, where several hundred foreign scholars as well as many Spaniards took a variety of courses and participated in a wide range of activities, particularly drama. English tourists are entering Spain in increasingly larger numbers, he said. It was Prof. Harrop's first visit to Spain in 14 years, and the third in his academic career.

Dance Better and Bigger Is Planned Says Messier

The annual ACS formal ball is being held on October 28th this year. The past two weeks, Dick Messier, President of Arts & Science, and his executive, have been meeting frequently behind closed doors to put the finishing touches on plans for the big dance.

The ACS is sponsored every year at McGill by the Arts & Science and Commerce Undergraduate Societies and in its short history has become one of the highlights of the University's social program.

This year even bigger and better plans are underway to make the ball a success, according to the executive. In place of having the traditional single orchestra playing, two have been chartered. A surprise entertainment has been arranged with one of Montreal's well-known and popular artists, whose name, however is not to be revealed until next week.

After due deliberation in executive meetings, it was unanimously decided to appoint Joan O'Connell as social chairman of the big formal. George Hunter and Vance Ward are co-chairmen in charge of decorations. Both are fresh in from Dawson and have taken an active part in Dawson campus life. Ticket sales are being handled by Jean Gay and patrons are being contacted by Terry Dion, while vice-president Doug Campbell has made arrangements for the orchestras and the novelty number.

"With this wealth of talent helping out," spoke Dick Messier last night, "the dance cannot help but go over the top. Previous ACS formals have been good, but this year we aim to make the ball the best one on the campus."

The formal is being held in the Currie Gym from 10:00 p.m. to 3:00 a.m. and tickets for the event go on sale next Wednesday, Oct. 19th. Announcements in connection with table reservations will be made next week.

AND NOW A WIGGY

A law student interested in whooping up the rah rah at McGill will introduce a hat called the "Wiggy" before Saturday's football game. He feels that if he can get every man, co-ed and Daily staffer into one of these red and white creations the whoop-de-do will rise to a crescendo. He may have something.

So-called "college spirit" is an elusive thing and sometimes it's difficult to see just what a promoter of spirit wants a man to do. You can skip only so many lectures.

However, if a crowd of McGill students sits in a football bleacher obviously pondering the possibility of finding the square root of minus one or wondering whether the premier of Limpopo will have to shake up his cabinet, something should be done about it. The cheer leaders can only leap so high and yell so loud. Perhaps a hat will help. The colors of the Wiggy will brighten up the stands to start with, and then they can be waved or used to stifle remarks about the referees if there is anything to be gained by stifling remarks about referees. This rah rah must not be carried too far, however. Take the case of a prominent Ottawa citizen who did time at McGill. The Ottawa Journal reports he would walk a few blocks, pause, give out with a McGill yell, walk a little further, pause again, and repeat the yell, and so on about the town.

There are those who are cynical about rah rah, however. Take the case of an editor of The Queen's Journal who didn't think much of the efforts of the women's organization, Levana, to whoop things up. He suggested they could give forth with the following yell of their own:

Knit one, purl two,
 we're Levana
 Yoo Hoo
 Drive, drive, drive.

With a Wiggy and a good engineer's song a member of any faculty in the university should be able to satisfy the most ardent promoter of college spirit.

THE WIGGY, a new hat for McGill students, is modelled by Kayo Little, president of the Women's Union. Eric Cloutier, promoter of the new campus headgear, hopes men as well as women will wear them.

THE RED AND WHITE panels of the cotton Wiggy are shown here. The hat is an adaptation of a style of hat worn on American campuses this fall. It will go on sale at the Tuck Shop and at the stadium before Saturday's game.

Wiggies The Latest Style In Campus Hats

In an effort to get more whoop-de-do into football games and other campus events, a new hat will be introduced to the campus before the big game Saturday. Although he doesn't exactly know why, Eric Cloutier, promoter of the hat, has called it a "Wiggy." It has been adapted from a type of hat which is all the rage, if that is how a fashion item should be described, on American campuses just now, Cloutier declares. The pictures above will be adequate to explain the hat until The

Pelletier Conducts Concert Series

After sponsoring 14 successful seasons of Saturday concerts for French-speaking young people, Les Concerts Symphoniques de Montreal have decided to sponsor this season a similar series of concerts for English-speaking students.

The conductor of the Metropolitan Opera, Dr. Wilfrid Pelletier, has consented to act as commentator and conductor for the eight concert series. "Our purpose in these concerts," said Pelletier, "is to offer good music to young people, without making them feel that they are being 'educated.' The program will be made up of one classic, one romantic and one modern composition, and I hope to include one Canadian composition each time, as well."

The organization of these concerts has been done by a committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. Alexander Howatson, and it will duplicate the French-language series which have been organized by Mme. Henri Geoffroy and Miss Helene Grenier. The French-language series has enjoyed great success at Plateau Hall for 14 years, but the location of Plateau Hall and the fact the programs and explanations were given in French, has limited the attendance of English-speaking students. Now the programs and commentaries will be given in English, and except for two, the concerts will be held at the Montreal High School Auditorium, 3440 University street. The dates of the concerts are:

- Oct. 22 (Currie Gym)
- Nov. 5
- Nov. 19 (Currie Gym)
- Dec. 3
- Jan. 28
- Feb. 11
- March 4
- March 25

The first and third concert (Oct. 22 and Nov. 19) will be held at the Sir Arthur Currie Gymnasium.

The concerts will start at 10.30 a.m. sharp, in order that the program can be completed by noon. Students who intend to attend the concerts are asked to be in their seats by 10.20 a.m. "There will be prizes and surprises," said Dr. Pelletier. Prizes up to $25 will be offered to students of different age groups for successful answers to the questions at each concert, and the surprises will probably be celebrated singers from the Metropolitan, where Pelletier holds the post of permanent conductor.

Special prices of $3 for the complete series has been offered to students up to 21 years of age. No tickets will be sold for individual events, and if the response for tickets continues, as it has until now, through the co-operation of the Montreal Central School Board, the series will probably be oversubscribed. Students who are interested are asked to leave their names and $5 at the Tuck Shop, to get back next year. The food was wonderful, and the people were all loads of fun.

The fact that most people at McGill only take five courses mystifies Marianne. "Out at UBC we often take six or seven, and it's not considered unusual. Last year I took six courses, and when I handed in my list of seven at registration this year, I was laughed at, and told to come back when I had crossed off (Continued on Page 4.)

NIGHT IS GRANDEUR

At best religion is something which should not be discussed in a mixed denominational gathering. Like politics, it is best to steer the conversation away and into more neutral channels.

All men have minds and hearts and no matter what their outward appearance may reveal to others, they all have a code, a philosophy of life — a religion, if you like — by which they govern their lives. Without this faith in the Almighty, a faith which lies always within their souls, they are helpless.

We often think of the words by Emerson: "So night is grandeur to our dust, and so near is God to man..."

From the humblest of us to the most overbearing there is some little spark, some little emotion to which man clings that helps him over the rough spots along the way and gives him the fortitude to stick out his chin and carry on.

He may shy away from the obvious sentimentality, but he nevertheless clings to his own ideals of religion. Religion is a comforting thing. It is the only thing that is secure. If it is intangible and a bit incomprehensible even to the individual, it is that vagueness and intangibility that make it more permanent and lasting. Religion is like a little book which can be slipped into the corner of a pocket and carried wherever one goes. It is always there, right where it should be, and it can always be pulled out and used when it is needed the most. On a train, walking down a busy street, climbing hills at night — it is always with us. And without our "philosophy of life" we are lost. It would seem that the true test of those philosophies would be their ability to stand by us in the time of emergency. A man's belief, a man's faith, a man's philosophy is the only thing on which he can rely. It is this philosophy that molds a man's character — that makes him what he is.

It is always amusing when someone says that he is an atheist — and looks around to see what sort of a shocking impression he has created on the gathering. Because we are sure that in reality he is truly more of a deist than he realizes.

It behooves us all to walk with tolerance beneath the portals of the many faiths and cults which surround us and to realize that through these gates our fellowmen seek for Life, the Way, and the Light.

PROFESSOR WOPSE'S ADVICE TO FRESHIES

McGill—The Trail's End

By BUZZ-ANN SUMNER

McGill University has proved to be the end of the trail this year for pretty, blonde Marianne Weldon of Trail, British Columbia. Marianne, a third year Arts student from the University of British Columbia is attending McGill this year on a N.F.C.U.S. exchange scholarship. For the benefit of all Freshmen who have not learned the names of all the organizations listed in the Students' Handbook, N.F.C.U.S. stands for the National Federation of Canadian University Students.

Nifcus, as it is commonly called, aims "to promote in every possible way a better understanding among all Canadian University Students, a greater degree of co-operation and correlation among all Canadian Universities for the effective promotion of student interests, and to provide the means for developing international relationships with student groups in other countries."

This is not the first time that Marianne has visited Montreal. She stayed here during the winter of 1943-44 and attended eighth grade at Montreal High School.

"I'm having a wonderful time, looking up all my old friends. It's amazing how many of them are coming to McGill, and are taking the same classes as I am," she said. The increase in traffic was one of the many things which Marianne noticed. "Of course it was during the war that I was here last, and we were just in the midst of gas rationing, but there seem to be so many more cars here now — especially on Sherbrooke street," she commented. Sherbrooke street itself was one reconverted at that — where the girls live while attending the University of British Columbia. In contrast with the beautifully finished and tastefully furnished rooms of R.V.C., those at Acadia Camp were "a bilious 'hade of pea green.'" "But don't get the idea that I didn't like Acadia Camp," Marianne hastily continued. "We had a good time there; in fact I can hardly wait

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

WEST INDIAN SOCIETY

Editor, The Daily
 Through no fault of the members of the Freshman Reception Committee, the West Indian Society was not accorded an opportunity to present its program of activities to those present at the Activities Night held on Friday. Since it is the aim of the society to have as many non-members as possible share in its activities for the session, I wish therefore to present through this column some of the items it has planned. First the society hopes to establish friendly contact with other campus groups through joint meetings, discussions etc. In addition, many of our meetings, socials, and other gatherings are open to all members of the student body — it might be noted that our advertisements generally state that all West Indians and their friends are welcome.

Also the society is now trying to do something to help its members whose living and other costs have suddenly jumped about 30 per cent with the recent devaluation of the pound. This task does not promise to be an easy one and for this reason the moral support of the student body would be a most valuable asset.

Arms and the Man

by Donald Paul Harris

A recent article in The Daily stated the view that the universities of North America lay emphasis on functional training, on the fitting of students to earn a living; whereas in Europe favour is given to more abstract studies, for the purpose of appreciating the subtleties of life as intensely as possible.

Difficult as it may be to decide in favour of one or the other of these approaches to education, it will be more generally agreed that accuracy is a worthwhile aim. The article in question, in saying that a greater proportion of the population goes to college in North America than in Europe, overlooked the fact that in Belgium and Switzerland, among other countries, not only is the proportion of students higher than in North America, but even too high for the needs of the country. Again, the assertion of the division between academic and practical studies in Europe, did not do justice to the blending achieved say at Cambridge, nor to the system of separating all studies to a certain extent at the Sorbonne in Paris.

If it be agreed that accuracy is a desirable aim in studying both the sciences and the humanities, can an equally clear conclusion be reached in weighing up the respective merits and demerits of American functional education and the European pursuit of culture? Why so much deference for European culture? The object of the European way of life seems to be no longer military conquest nor physical progress, but perhaps rather the polishing of the accomplishments of the mind. However, here in North America education fits in with the particular way of life at least as well. It fits in with the American way of life, the pursuit of physical advancement.

Europe, and Britain in particular, has had its ages of concentrated pursuit of the physical; yet can it be satisfied with the change which has come about in recent decades, a change from dominating the physical life of the world, to reliance for material needs on one of its offsprings: The campaigns for the modernization of industry for economic survival certainly do not suggest satisfaction. Yet most Europeans would scorn to take on the life most Americans lead, just as Americans would not dream of voluntarily relinquishing their physical achievements. Nevertheless Europeans are not satisfied with their study of men when (Continued on Page 4.)

International Swim Schedule Planned For Red Mermen

By RUBE BRESSLER

Coach Vic Curran announced a ten meet schedule for his Canadian Swimming champions at Wednesday's practice session. The Red Mermen face a very difficult array of natorial foes in the coming season. Seven meets are to be held in Montreal, and three contests are on the road. Amherst, Springfield and Connecticut are encountered on a New England invasion by the McGill squad in early February. The Montreal contests will include two C.A.S.A. open meets and visits by Union College, Rennselaer Polytechnical Institute, and Lasalle. The Intercollegiate meet against Queens and Toronto on February 18 and an American squad will provide opposition on the Winter Carnival week-end.

The New England venture will pit Vic Curran's lads against the powerhouse squads of that section of the states. Last year the McGill squad was victorious over Connecticut and Amherst, but was defeated in Montreal by Springfield, R.P.I., one of the two squads to halt the Canadian titleholders last year will arrive with a team rated over last year's 'near perfect' aggregation. Union, too, posted a superior record in very strong competition last year.

The most awesome foe to be met however is mighty LaSalle of Philadelphia. The Quaker City crew was ranked number 4 in the States last year and boasts the world's greatest swimmer in breaststroke, Joe Verdeur, who holds the Olympic 200 metre flying breaststroke title, the world record for the 200 yard event and is Intercollegiate 220 yard freestyle record-holder. He is the spearhead of a marvellous group of performers. For example, their 300 yard medley relay trio traverses the distance approximately 9 seconds faster than the Dominion record, set last year by Merrow-Koplin-Young of McGill.

The task ahead is sure to be a tough one. Coach Curran read the riot act to the boys. He made clear the fact, that any sort of success in the coming year requires work and spirit on the part of every single member of the squad. Regular workouts and conscientious practice were the keynote of Dr. Curran's little chat. The schedule is such as to promise disaster if any slackening in training occurs.

Most of the squad with a smattering of newcomers has been training for weeks. Replacements are needed in the crawl department. The Interfaculties Swim Meet is scheduled for November 10. Students who are interested in swimming are urged to get some practice in on Thursday nights (tonite included) at 5.15 at the Canadian (Continued on Page 4.)

First Hockey Drill to Be Called for Forum Today

Things will be humming this afternoon at 12.30 p.m. when coach Dave Campbell will get his hockey recruits on the ice at the Montreal Forum for their practice of the '49-'50 season.

Everyone will get a chance to make a bid for a regular spot on either the senior or intermediate teams. This practice will just loosen the limbs of the fellows and get them ready for their 12-game grind. Nov. 18 opens the C.I.A.U. season when McGill will face-off with the Queen's Gaels here at the Forum. There will be many new faces on the ice for the Red squad as about half of last year's team are unable to play hockey this year. Jack Gelleneau, who was voted last year's all star goater, will be replaced by Tony Dobell, who saw action with the McGill squad in the latter part of the '49 season. Jack is now playing hockey with the N.H.L. Bruins.

The names of Tom Hale, Jimmy Atkinson, Syd May, Reg Seclair and Charlie Hayward, all of whom played on the forward line last year, are now just memories in McGill hockey.

Doug Heron and Goose Gosselin, the starry defence pair, will also be missing from the line-up. Looking back through hockey records, we find McGill came through 13 times in winning the Canadian Intercollegiate Championship, falling six short of U. of Toronto, who holds the record with 19 wins.

Many familiar faces will be back on the line-up, with the Robillard cousins, Rocky and Gene, Phil Henry and little Charlie Lafontaine on the forward line. Jack Hennessy and Sandy Sanderson will again play back on the McGill defence when the season starts.

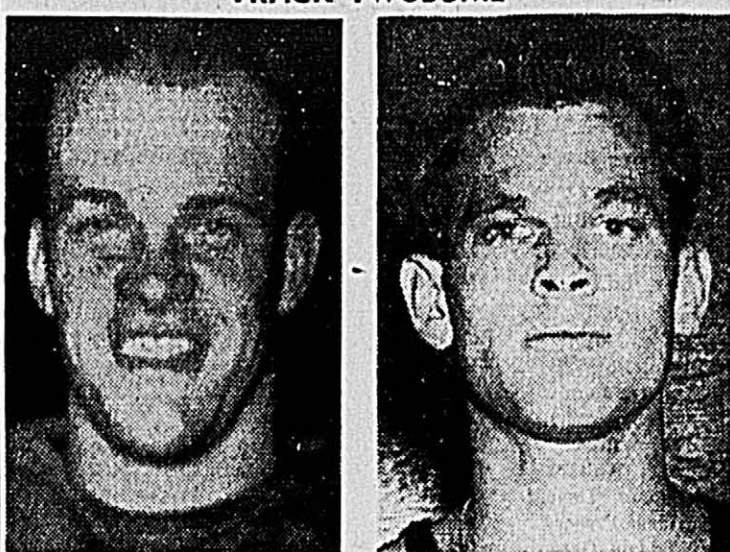

Last week-end saw a capacity crowd of 120 pile into our NEW house for a grand housewarming and Thanksgiving barbecue. All the old faces were back and a lot of new ones were initiated into our ranks by being dragged to the top of five hundred foot cliffs on a rope, lured into rock caves and chimneys and told to proceed upward by placing their backs against one rock wall and their feet against the other and squirming toward daylight. Freshman hazing has nothing on us when it comes to leaving the victims with cuts, bruises, and blisters and hoarse voices from singing.

However we are quite confident that they will be back for more, so right now we'd like to invite everybody on a combined hiking and trail-clearing trip next Sunday. The party will leave from Ste. Agathe and proceed down the Gillespie Trail which we are taking over as a new MOC trail. Mr. Johannsen himself, who is responsible for most of the original ski trail network in the Laurentians will be with us to lead and advise us. So come on all you skiers, don't let this Indian summer fool you; there's a lot to be done and the snow will be here sooner than you think. Grab a lunch and a cup (you have not lived until you have tasted MOC trail-brewed tea), and jump on the 8.00 a.m. Daylight train from Windsor station. Unfortunately there will not be any organized rock-climbing this week-end, but probably will be resumed again on the following one. For information concerning Sunday, please phone John Bishop, FI. 7504.

We would also like to remind all would-be cowboys and cowgirls

TRACK TWOSOME

Great things are expected from Bob Bartlett, left, and Tink Kyle in track and field this year. Big Bob celebrated his return to active competition by carrying off the honors in the shot-put and discus while Tink, Intercollegiate javelin champ, won the javelin throw in the McGill Championships held on Tuesday.

Team to Be Chosen for Coming Track and Field Meet

When Coach Van Wagner chooses his senior intercollegiate track and field team for next Wednesday's collegiate meet at Western he will have plenty of experienced men to choose from. More than half last year's team are returning to the track wars.

Among the veterans are two intercollegiate record holders, Ted Fainst and Dave Blair. Fainst holds the shot put record with a 42' 2 3/4" heave made in Montreal in 1947. Blair, who this summer raised the Canadian native high jump mark to 6' 4", broke the intercollegiate record last year jumping slightly over six feet.

Two other boys holding recognized Canadian records are also out for the team. After a two year absence Big Bob Bartlett is back. Bob holds the campus mark for the shot put, and two years ago made a Canadian record in the same event at Molson Stadium. Another summer high jump record maker Tink Kyle new Maritime champion timber topper is aiming to wear red colours come Wednesday.

On the track side of the ledger Mr. Van has last year's top sprinter Pete Robinson. Pete was intercollegiate century champ in 1947 and has been showing well this season. Distance men Skeet Dorland and Bill Donnellon are also among the returnees. Bill ran a strong half-mile in last Tuesday's McGill Championships.

Over the pole vault pit last year team member is back. Bob Menard coming third in last season's event, came along strong in Tuesday's meet. Menard was added in '48 value with his broad jump ability. These boys will probably be the main springs of the team hoping to bring back to McGill the R. Tait MacKenzie Trophy emblematic of Intercollegiate Track supremacy.

A & S Intramural Setup Organized

An effort is being made to consolidate and organize the Intramural Sports setup in the faculty of Arts and Science. The purpose of this program is to produce the best possible Intramural team and perhaps bring a few Interfac titles to the lower campus.

It has been suggested that a council be formed with representatives from each year to discuss the managing and running of A. & S. entries in the various Interfac leagues. The best way to get this council started would seem to be for those interested in the Sports program in general or in any particular sport to contact their faculty Intramural athletics representative Skip Sheldon at Douglas Hall (MA. 9181).

As many students as possible should get in touch with Skip in the near future.

Cummings to Head Toronto Blues Here For Saturday's Tilt

How fare the Blues? A vitally important question that. Important to not only Obek's Redmen but also to all McGills who shudder at the thought of the havoc caused hereabouts last year by the self-same Varsity gridders. A McGill victory over the cocky Torontonians would not only be in order, but might serve somewhat in erasing the humiliation of last season's debacles.

But wait. Let us not get too optimistic until we have had a look at Masterson's charges for 1949. On close examination we see that many of last year's squad are back in the fold, although such standouts as Nick Volpe and Ted Toogoode have graduated. Remaining to carry the torch are several notable holdovers such as John Choresteki, Bill Danylchuck, Jack Gray, Fraser Mustard, and triple threat Bruce Cummings, to mention a few. In addition, friend Masterson has added several huskies who, if they liveup to advance publicity, should cause much trouble around and about. Most outstanding of the rookie crop are Brewer, Hadlow, Sinclair, and Bazos. Watch them. All four toll in the Blue backfield, and have shown well in Varsity's two games to date.

The Varsity squad had a tough struggle downing Queens last week, which doesn't prove anything, since they have a tough struggle with the Gaels each year. In fact last year the Kingston lads dumped the Blues 8-6 in their first meeting which didn't deter Toronto from walking over every other team in the loop.

Saturday's game might hold some surprises for all concerned, for Obek's Redmen show much improvement over last year's cellar dwellers, and unless Varsity shows as well as their '48 champs, watch out for the fireworks.

Al Lenard of Queen's Leads CIAU Scorers

Quarterback Al Lenard of Queen's, aside from tossing a touchdown pass to Tip Logan, kicked one placement and converted three Queen's majors, to set the scoring pace in the Intercollegiate pigskin league. The boys are bunched close together in the point-getting department at this early date but with Varsity facing our alma mammy's stalwarts at the local bowl Saturday, and Western travelling to Queen's, the field should be wide open, come press time Sunday.

Intercollegiate Rugby Set For Tomorrow at Stadium

Kick-off time for the first Intercollegiate rugby game of the season will be 2.30 p.m. at Molson Stadium tomorrow when McGill meets Toronto. The final selection of the McGill team is now taking place after a practice game against Dawson last night. Since three players from Dawson were included in last year's team, it is likely that some Dawson talent will be added to the team playing on Friday.

The game against Toronto comes at the end of only two weeks of training for the McGill players. The shortness of the training period made an earlier selection of the team impossible, so that the fifteen who take the field against Toronto will have had little practice at playing together as a team. On the other hand, since there have been sufficient players turning out to make up two teams at each practice, the value of the training has been greatly increased over previous years.

In addition the large turnout offers a wider basis for selection and, as most of the players are familiar with the game, should make for a higher standard of play. The team has been particularly lucky in gaining the services of Mr. Dick Miller, formerly of the Westmount fifteen, as coach for the forwards. Professor Kierstead, team coach, is now able to devote more of his energies toward getting the three-line into shape.

RUGGER CLUB ORGANIZED
Rugger players at McGill have now organized a Rugger Club; the objects of the club being to produce a team, gain support for it, and to elect an executive to arrange games and to handle other administrative matters. The first thing the Club's executive has accomplished is the outfitting of the team with new uniforms, so that the rugger fifteen is now well equipped.

It is hoped that more games may they are left without arms, just as the Americans, with all the tools of life, will continue to crave their impressions of European culture. Here, then, there are just two ways of looking at life; perhaps it is not so much the 'job' of the university to make a choice between them, and pursue the one it has chosen, but rather to be as all-embracing as possible. To fit those for earning their living who wish it, to give others the opportunity for looking at life rather than fighting in it, and above all to open its studies to as many real conceptions of life as present themselves; to substitute for the internationalism of the students of the Middle Ages, an internationalism of mind in our sharply divided modern world.

two courses. Believe me, it was the hardest thing to do — they all look so interesting." Marianne believes that she could spend ten years at university, and still not take all the courses that she would like. However, she wishes to become a secretary. "I'd like to go to the Katherine Gibbs Secretarial School in New York, and then I'd like to spend more time travelling. Since coming to Montreal for the second time, and commuting between Trail and Vancouver several times during the summer, I have the travel bug in my system, and the only way to get rid of it is to travel, so travel I will."

Legion Pool at 1191 Mountain Street, a few blocks from the Campus. The training will help you in the Intramural meet on November 10, a meet which last year uncovered two valuable swimmers for the Red Mermen. Graham Rainbow and Greg Titus, who turned in a record-breaking performance at the championships in Toronto, had their initial competitive ventures in the McGill Intramural meet last year. Both boys were vital cogs in the Red Mermen's fine team. The McGill squad of last year posted winning times which were superior to those of the recent Canadian Olympic team. This was markedly so in the back and breaststrokes events in which Peter Mingle, Adin Merrow and Irwin Kopin sped to spectacular wins for McGill. The team has a potentially fine future, but only work can aid it to materialize. The schools to be met merit great effort on the part of the Red Mermen. The training must however be done before the encounters not in them.

Book Swap Closes Friday;

"A new change in the constitution of the book exchange has been brought into effect this year," stated Hugh Harkness, the manager. A service charge of ten percent on the amount of sale of each book will be charged with a minimum charge of twenty-five cents. In case of books not sold there will be a ten cent charge to get them back. This charge was decided at an executive meeting of the S.E.C. last week. The book exchange has been ser-

This is the first year, however, that the twenty-five cent minimum has been charged. In the last two days, over six hundred dollars worth of books have been sold, bringing the total number of books sold this term to over 1,100. This is in spite of the fact that the exchange is only open from 11.30 to 1.30 each day. After Friday, the book exchange will be closed for one week. It will be reopened the following Tuesday. Throughout the year, the office will remain open one day every two weeks. It refuses to accept responsibility for any books left after March 15, 1950. This is because so many books have lain unclaimed for years. "This service is purely voluntary," said Ted Harris, assistant manager. "and students may ask any price which they think is appropriate for their textbooks." All profits from the book exchange go to the S.E.C. which in turn uses this money to benefit student activities.

Women Students Introduced To M.W.S.A.A. Activities

Members of the M.W.S.A.A. met in the R.V.C. gym last night where they were addressed by various members of the Physical Education Department. Janie Robb, President of the Association, introduced the various speakers. She explained the various duties and aspects of the individual student to the athletic council. Various beginners' classes will begin during this month, she said. Among these, Folk dancing, "keep-fit" class, beginners basketball and badminton. Something new will be the Leadership course. As a preparation for summer councilors at camps and playgrounds. Booths were erected by each of the various athletic clubs. Information and program outlines were explained at the booths. The highlight of the evening was the fencing match between Pat Carson and Ljuba van den Ken, the latter of whom ranked third in the Dominion Fencing Championships. The Ski House is for those who want a pleasant skiing week-end at St. Adele. The cost is only $2.90 for each week-end. The Modern Dance Club is divided into Junior and Senior sections, members being classed according to their ability. There will be a tea on October 20 at four o'clock to acquaint students with its purposes. The Badminton Club has managed to obtain the Currie Gym

New Time Announced For Prof's Buf. Supper

The Freshman Reception Committee has announced a change in the time originally set for the buffet supper to be held this Sunday in R.V.C. It will commence at 6 p.m. instead of 5 p.m. as previously scheduled, in the Assembly Hall. This last event of the Freshman Reception program will give Freshmen and Freshettes an opportunity to meet their professors in an informal and friendly atmosphere. Many of the professors, who teach first year subjects, have been invited, and it is hoped that a large number of the new students will attend. All senior students are also invited to be present.
